COMBINATION BEDSIDE CABINET AND OVERBED TABLE

Competition for filling nursing home beds will become more and more of a challenge. How do you meet this challenge?

You need to present a nursing home that is attractive to prospective residents (and their relatives). To them the most important area of your facility will be their room. The room you present must be tastefully decorated but because of space limitations can only be functionally furnished – this has always meant a compromise between tasteful and clinical.

Space limitations and budget constraints make it increasingly difficult to meet resident needs and a little space needs to go a long way to give a pleasant resident experience.

Some manufacturers have now recognised this and are making clinical nursing beds that would be suitable in the most gracious home environment. Also, items of equipment that have always been identified with sickness and care such as overbed tables can now be removed from sight when not required, simply by being incorporated into the bedside cabinet.

COMBINATION BEDSIDE CABINET AND OVERBED TABLE

There is strong evidence that residents with more individual control over their personal space have increased levels of comfort. A bedside cabinet placed along the side of the bed can offer them easy access to its contents (accessed both sides) and a height adjustable bed to assist with that access, gives the resident that independence.

- If a resident wants their glasses, the drawer is handy
- When they tire of reading their book, they can immediately put it away
- If they want their medication or a tissue, they can get them easily
- If they are drinking a cup of tea, the cabinet is handy beside the bed
- If their meal arrives, the table can be easily put in place

A more self sufficient resident reduces the amount of assistance that a nurse usually provides and therefore frees up her time.

A bedside cabinet that offer access from both sides means positioning of the cabinet is never a comprise and with a fold away overbed table it maximises the use of the surface area and offers convenient storage without sacrificing critical space and manoeuvrability.

These bedside cabinets address the competing needs of residents and caregivers through controlling clutter and providing functional flexibility.

COMBINATION BEDSIDE CABINET AND OVERBED TABLE

Combination bedside cabinets not only meet the requirements of the resident, have a favourable price / quality ratio but combine well with the Burmeier range of beds.

Because the drawer and cabinet open from both sides the cabinet is easy to clean – no dark corners – offering better infection prevention.

COMBINATION BEDSIDE CABINET AND OVERBED TABLE

Combination bedside cabinets represent a trendsetting innovation, designed and produced by Burmeier. A bedside table system that does not just meet the requirements of the resident, but offers efficiency, technology and optimum cost effectiveness.

Web based research shows that more than 80% of bedside cabinet manufacturers in Europe offer bedside cabinet overbed table combinations. A trend that grows in popularity because of its successful application.

These are more than just bedside cabinets. They are bedside cabinets that have been designed for healthcare settings and for people with disabilities: They are about multi-functional furnishings that make life easier for residents while in bed and for carers as well. They have a space saving fold-out over bed table that can be adjusted in height and swivels for the resident's convenience.
